TEERING OFF

This Week: The Cowboys begin a stretch that includes three tournaments in a nine-day window, first traveling across the Wyoming-Colorado border to Fort Collins, Colo., for the Ram Masters Invitational on Sept. 19-20 at the Fort Collins Country Club. The second stop is the William H. Tucker Intercollegiate in Albuquerque, N.M., which will take place on Sept. 23-24. The Mark Simpson Colorado Invite in Boulder, Colo., will follow on Sept. 26-27.

Steady Improvement: At last weekend's USAF Gene Miranda Invitational, the Cowboys reduced their team score in each of the three 18-hole rounds. Starting the tournament with a first-round score of 300 (+12), the squad then recorded a 296 (+8) in the Saturday afternoon round and capped the weekend with a very impressive 286 (-2) in Sunday's final round. Wyoming put forth the second-best team score on Sunday, with tournament co-champion UNLV as the only team to best the Cowboys at 284 (-4).

McCullough's Move: After beginning the USAF Gene Miranda Invite with a 78 (+6) last Saturday, junior Drew McCullough embarked on an incredible climb up the leaderboard. He dropped four strokes each in his next two rounds, closing out the weekend with a Sunday score of 70 (-2). After sitting tied for 50th following Saturday's first round, McCullough ended the tournament tied for 19th place.

Hardworking Man: Glenn Workman tied for the tournament lead in pars at the USAF Gene Miranda Invitational, recording 39 throughout the weekend.

Last Year's Ram Masters Invitational: The Cowboys took fifth place on the heels of Kamrin Allen's 217 (+7), which tied him for 14th place in the field of 88 golfers. Drew McCullough tied for 19th, recording just one more stroke than Allen. Both McCullough and Allen contributed a round of 69 (-1) during the tournament, while Quintin Pope ended the tournament with an even-par 70 to pull into a tie for 31st place.
